

Unforced calibration: the dominant difference is in the returned DF values

The log-arithmetic correction is small

The difference persists at larger offsets

